

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We are very grateful to the following people who played important roles in the preparation of this publication. Hillary French, who provided us with excellent input during the conceptual stage of this book, not in the least by introducing us to Maria Ivanova who helped identify key topics and authors. Our Research Associate, Irene Martinetti, whose quick grasp of complex issues and assistance in serving as a sounding board during the final stages of editing the book proved invaluable. Research Assistants Ashley Hatchel and Melanie Zorn for their diligence in checking the accuracy of factual material included in the book. And last but not least, Walter Hoffmann for his astute critiques and input.

As in all its publications, the Center strives to include arguments in favor of and opposing various policy options. Since we did not include a chapter in this book written by skeptics, we are especially grateful to our authors for their balanced presentations that include both pros and cons of proposals to strengthen environmental governance.

Funding for this book came from individual donations, annual dues from associated organizations, and a generous legacy.
